Subject: Microsoft Case

I've been thinking about this whole anti-trust thing and I've come to the conclusion that this is one case that should never, and I mean never been brought to trial. I am not now nor have I ever been an employee of Microsoft, but a consumer that feels that Microsoft has been given a raw deal.

If other companies cannot create a product competitive to the product Microsoft offers, that is not Microsoft's fault, now is it? If Netscape had the ability to come out with a product similar that they could have bundled their Navigator software with, they could have done so and then could have competed with Microsoft for the PC Operating System business. But nooooo, these other companies chose instead to ask the government to sue Microsoft.

Please, Mr. Ashcroft, I was thrilled when President Bush chose you as Attorney General, now, please, do the right thing, and drop all the charges against Microsoft.

Thanks
